

We want you to know that Aardvark has policies which promote a safety-first mentality during the spread of the Coronavirus (COVID-19).

At Aardvark we are making every effort to help prevent the spread of the virus and we understand that our employees and company policies can play an important part of the role.

We have always kept your safety and health at the forefront of our business; however we want to let you know that we are implementing additional measures to minimize any concerns for you and your clients home or future home.

Our Aardvark Family members are the best and always go the extra mile, but during this time we are asking them to be extra diligent using safety measures, not to work if they are feeling sick, and to self-quarantine if they or any of their family members have been exposed to COVID-19.

In turn, we are asking all buyers who are not feeling well to stay home and not attend the home inspection. If you can not attend the inspection our Home Inspector will call you after the inspection to discuss the findings of the inspection. Also, to limit exposure to the virus, we are asking that only direct buyers and the Real Estate Agent attend the inspection.

If you are a seller of a house and if you are not feeling well, then please call us and we will reschedule the inspection with all parties involved in the real estate transaction.

Certainly, the spread of the virus has everyone on high alert, but if we all work together then we can take actions to keep everyone safer.
